TAKE NOTICE,

THAT I am to be sold on such terms, that the purchaser need not advance any cash, unless he pleases, till it is earned by my services, provided no accident happens me; or, if you please. I am to be farmed out for two years, and not less. I am a bright bay, full 15¾ hands high, of noble descent, my name is TRIMMER—I was got by Hall's imported horse Eclipse, my dam, purchased by Doctor Hall, was got by the imported horse Slim; my grand dam was got by Old Figure; my great grand dam by Taskers Othello out of Selima, &c. &c. as will more fully appear by William Lyle's attested certificate who raised me. My character as a racer is well established; I won the colt's purse at Bladensburg of twenty guineas; I won a fifty guinea purse at Baltimore, a fifty guinea purse at Annapolis and a fifty guinea purse at Hagerstown. I never lost a race but the last I run at Alexandria, which was owning to my being badly shod, as I lost all my plates before I got in. I am in fine plight, sound in every respect; my offspring are in great repute, some of which are now in training for the turf—procure me good stands and entertainment and I am able to earn one thousand dollars per annum.

Any person inclining to buy or rent may know the terms by applying to John Carnan (Lovehall) Cœcil county and state of Maryland, eight miles south of Elkton.

From the Portland Gazette.

TOM PAINE's PLAN
OF REVOLUTIONIZING AMERICA.

[The late French papers contain a number of speculations with regard to this country, the most false and ridiculous. Something however, may be learnt from them respecting the views of that abandoned nation. In one of their phillipics appear the following sketch of a plan to "chastise Americans!" from the pen of that arch revolutionizer Tom Paine.]

"Had France an army to throw into the United States, she ought not to attempt it. The disasters of Burgoyne and Cornwallis, arose from penetrating into their interior." "Has France, say the partizans of Pitt, a naval force to send upon the American coast? Where can they be revictualled? Are there not fortifications in almost all their sea ports? and an English squadron on their coasts?" True indeed it is, that France can neither send an army or great naval force to America. How ought she then to deal with these high mettled sons of America? Who in fact owe their very elevation and prosperity to France and to the friends of Franklin and Thomas Paine. She ought to distress and embarrass the American government, that is, the English or anti-American party.

To declare war against the United States, would be the height of folly: for it would be declaring war against all the republicans, the planters, and the Indians, from whose support we may derive great advantage. But how, it will be said, can we carry on a partial war? With a small squadron of light vessels, not drawing more than ten feet of water, a few guns and bomb ketches, you may proceed to the river Savannah in Georgia, pass the Tibeebar island at Savannah. Here you may get a handsome supply of provisions; and on your return down the river, burn the buildings on each side, even to its mouth. The same plan will do for Charleston: pass the bar and set fire to the buildings on Johnson and Sullivan islands. You may next visit Georgetown in South, and Wilmington in North-Carolina; enter the Chesapeak (perhaps it may be adviseable to make the first operation here) burn Norfolk, Alexandria, Annapolis and Baltimore. You must be careful, my friends, by rapid movements, to prevent a defeat by the English squadron, or by the Americans on shore, who will at the first alarm collect in great numbers. In eight days you may do all you wish in the Chesapeak. As Baltimore is furthest up, you had better begin with that, and there you may raise a handsome contribution.

Near Savannah, Charleston and Norfolk, are small forts, that you may easily take in the rear.

In the Delaware you most proceed with great caution. Lewistown on the left may be easily burnt; and if you were certain there was not an English squadron near the Capes, you might set fire to Philadelphia. It is a business of a week only.

Between Sandy Hook and New-York, you will find a pretty strong fort; this you will silence with your bombs. The buildings at Long Island and Nantucket are easily burnt; but Boston must be bombarded.

The master-stroke would be to conclude with Halifax. The English vessels from the East Indies generally winter there. Not expecting you in that quarter, they will be less prepared to receive you. Should your brave squadron fall in with the Quebec fleet convoyed by a single frigate, it would be a brilliant affair indeed. Excuse my freedom, dear republicans; you are neither tygers nor sop embrizers. Why may you not send the most of your emigrants into Cadana?

Connected as you are with Spain, you might go to New-Orleans, seize the ports of the Natches, collect the friends of liberty from the back settlements in the United States, from Kentuckey to the frontiers. You will have to distribute a few presents among the Indians. You must put Gen. Clark and Knoxville in motion, summon to the French standard the Floridas and American troops raised by Genet and Mangouret, declare freedom to the black men, that are slaves in the southern states, and give to the men of colour, the sweet enjoyment of the rights of man.

It is in fact from the inhabitants of the sea ports that British influence proceeds. The only way to break up their nests is to burn their sea ports, and in this way compel them to live among the Planters. These last will not fail to treat them as the authors of all their calamities. This is the only way to humble the British Lion that now courts an alliance with the American Eagle, only to bring about its destruction.

GENERAL DUMOURIER,

In a late publication, in which he notices the difference between the United States, among other judicious thoughts gives the following:

"It appears very impolitic in France to exasperate the peaceable Americans, and make them acquainted with their strength. Beyond the reach of attack by land, should despair convert them into warriors, they may become the scourge of Europe. The Antilles and the colonies of the different powers are entirely at their mercy, they may easily starve and conquer them, they may put an end to the Newfoundland fisheries, they may devastate the coast of Europe by their privateers. Maritime war has charms for two great passions of human nature, avarice and love of adventure. The preparation, the expence, the forces it requires, are of a smaller magnitude than those of land, and their effects more lucrative and rapid.

"The Americans have provisioned, and consequently saved the colonies of France; that service alone ought in the eyes of the Directory to have obliterated the frivolous grievances complained of, which if duly weighed, were not injurious, but rather the just proceedures of a prudent and pacific neutrality."

If Minos ſhould be elected Governor, it is ſaid he has engaged to Collot d'Herbois, the ſucceſſion into his Tribune. Pleaſant times theſe in reſerve for poor Pennſylvania!

Vivere parvo.

Amongſt the many diſguſting traits in the French character, not leaſt conſpicuous, is their inſenſibility to reverſe of fortune, and their contentment under exile and poverty. It has always marked them of a lower grade, in mental endowment, than any other civilized nation; but it paſſes with many for a very oppoſite characteriſtic, and ſo let it paſs. Various writers have diſplayed this indifference of the French, under the moſt depreſſing misfortunes and calamities. In their endurance of hunger, however, and their ingenuity in ſatiating it, they appear the moſt curious. The Cardinal de Retz tells us, that the inhabitants of Paris, were ſubſiſted, during many days on the meal of pulverized human bones, extracted from the church yard of the Innocents, during the ſiege of the league. A more extraordinary ſtory is told either by Bonneval, or Trenck, or Munchauſen, of a Frenchman exiſting nine days on the pomatum which adhered to the inſide of his hat!

GOVERNOR MACK KEAN.

"Oh! good old man! how well in thee appears
The conſtant ſervice of this antique world
When ſervice ſweat for duty not for meed!
Thou art not for the faſhion of theſe times
Where none will ſweat but for promotion;
And having that, do choak their ſervice up
Even with the having: it is not ſo with thee.
But, poor Old Man, thou prun'ſt a rotten tree,
That cannot ſo much as a bloſſom yield
In lieu of all thy pains and huſbandry."

Quæ domus tam ſtabilis &c.

An inſurrection lately broke out in a ſpacious manſion, tenanted by ſeveral families in each ſtory. The conflicting parties proceeded from ſtep to ſtep in their revolutionary movements, until the ſovereignty of the lower ſtory actually cut away the ſtairs, and compelled the ſovereign people of the upper part, women and all, to aſcend and deſcend through the windows by a ladder. The others retaliated, in various ways, till the houſe became, through the inveterate fury of either party, a ſtriking illuſtration of the well known paſſage in holy writ.

The ſhocking increaſe of the moſt flagitious crimes, in the ſtate of Pennſylvania, within the laſt twelve months, is exceeded only by the abundance of thoſe of leſſer degree. The reſtoration of a penal code to this unfortunate commonwealth, can alone ſave ſociety from degenerating to a ſtate little preferable to that of wolves and bears. That dreary humanity which delights in warding puniſhment off the heads of the worſt wretches in ſociety—and proceeds no farther, is faſt retiring before the ſlow but ſolemn force of experience.

In four words of a beautiful Poet,

"Pœna metuſque aberant,"

we have a ſtrong, though accidental elucidation of the conſequence that follows the non-exiſtence of proper ſanctions to the laws.

The Poet is deſcribing his Golden Age, when puniſhment and fear, and a thouſand other ills were put away; the juſtneſs of the connection, in which he introduces his pœna metuſque, muſt forever be realized, until that viſionary æra of his imagination be brought to paſs: But the preſent is an Age of Braſs.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman in New-Orleans, dated 26th January.

"Since my laſt of the 13th inſt. there have arrived here thirteen American veſſels, and ſeveral are ſhortly expected from Vera Cruz, where they have been denied permiſſion to ſell. The great number of arrivals here lately have reduced our markets conſiderably, and they will continue falling for ſome time.

"At preſent ſales for caſh cannot be made—Wine is in great plenty. Our own produce has riſen in conſequence of the encreaſed demand, and will ſoon become very ſcarce."

MR. FENNO,

PERMIT me to give one more extract from Dr. Smith's ſermon on the dangers of pleaſure. A. B.

"Pleaſure not only impairs the guard which a wiſe man ſhould conſtantly maintain over his heart, but often lays it open to too ſtrong temptations.

Temptation, always dangerous to the imperfect virtue of man, is peculiarly ſo in the houſe of feaſting. There the ſenſes and the paſſions become excited, and ſurround their objects with a fictitious coloring. The glow of imagination raiſes a ſpecies of inchantment around the votary of pleaſure, and his paſſions are growing every moment more impetuous and ungovernable.

A good man, who would preſerve the purity of his mind, ſhould, as far as is poſſible for human prudence, avoid thoſe ſcenes where temptation acquires unuſual force; or if, ſometimes called to enter them, it becomes him to ſummon to his aid, reaſon, experience, and all the power of pious ſentiment, to prevent the firſt incautious wandering of the heart and fancy, and to keep them clearly within that dubious limit which ſeparates vice from virtue. Approaching this critical point, they often kindle with a ſudden and unexpected ardor, and hurry him beyond the moderation which he intended to obſerve. One important indulgence invites another—the gates of the citadel are thrown open, and in ruſh an hoſt of enemies. Of this David affords us an inſtructive and affecting example. And we ſtill read, with ſympathy and commiſeration for his deep affliction, the hiſtory of that pious and amiable prince whoſe latter days were filled with bitterneſs and tears for having only once incautiouſly courted a temptation, and once indulged a pleaſure, to which he was ſtrongly invited by the proſperity of his fortune.

How much more certainly will pleaſure corrupt thoſe who enter its purlieus without circumſpection, and expoſe themſelves to all the dangerous force of thoſe temptations that meet the young and unwary in the houſe of feaſting? Here example, ſympathy of feeling, the arts of ſeduction, all the allurements of ingenuity, all the decorations that wit can give to vice, unite their influence to betray the heart. Here it is that youth ſo often lay aſide their early ſimplicity and modeſty, and turn apoſtates from virtue. Do you behold a profligate young man? Aſk, where was he firſt corrupted? It was probably in the midſt of the pleaſures and amuſements of the houſe of feaſting. Where did his paſſions firſt kindle with a new and unknown ardor, and his heart form the looſe purpoſe? Was it not in the houſe of feaſting where temptation invited, where appetite impelled, and where the licentious ſtrain of converſation encouraged his wiſh? Where did he firſt hear thoſe principles defended that favor the diſorders of the paſſions, and remove from them all the reſtraints of religion? Where did he learn at length to ſport them himſelf, while, perhaps, his heart yet ſmote him for his impiety and falſhood? Was it not in the houſe of feaſting whence diſſipation had baniſhed wiſdom and prudence? where the ſons of folly were ambitious of ſhining by an impious and impertinent wit, and ſought admiration from one another by the moſt frivolous qualities? Where, at laſt, did principles become totally perverted, and no longer impoſe any curb upon the licentiouſneſs of manners? Was it not in the midſt of thoſe ſcenes of groſs pleaſure where the mind, inveloped in the miſts of paſſion, ſees falſhood as truth—where reaſon, bribed by the heart, defends the innocence of every indulgence—and where the example of others contributes to render it confident in error? Ah! temptation acquires a dangerous, and often a fatal power in the houſe of feaſting—it works in all the avenues that lead to it. Youth, who incautiouſly expoſe themſelves to its impreſſions, are haſtening to ruin.

On the other hand, does not wiſdom require that we ſhould occaſionally enter into the houſe of mourning, and grow familiar there with thoſe ſerious and thoughtful ſcenes that preſent to us inſtructive leſſons on the vanity of the world? There every object contributes to abate the immoderate ardor of the paſſions, and to diveſt the allurements to vice of their falſe charms. There we behold all that attracted ambition, or that nouriſhed pride levelled to the duſt. Blaſted perhaps are the objects of unlawful deſire—and the deſires themſelves ſeem, for the moment to be extinguiſhed. Silent the impious tongue that profaned religion, and that jeſted with eternity. Gone to her account that ſpirit that, in life, may have forgotten her eternal deſtination, and ſought only a vain and momentary happineſs among the deceitful and fugitive joys of ſenſe. O my ſoul! is this the end of all the gilded proſpects of vice and folly! If temptation is ever too ſtrong for thee, turn to the houſe of mourning, and the views that are there preſented will correct it.

In the BRITISH HOUSE of COMMONS, Dec. 11

Mr. Tierney, brought forward a motion declaring that "it was incumbent on his Majeſty's miniſters to adviſe his Majeſty not to enter into any alliance with foreign powers, that may hinder his Majeſty from negociating a peace with France whenever ſhe may be diſpoſed to enter upon a fair and equitable negociation." This propoſition, like thoſe pacific meaſures recommended by the American Tierneys, was intended to prevent the only ſure ſtep by which to render France, ſincere and earneſt in her diſpoſition for peace; and on this topic, Mr. Canning, with peculiar force and elegance, oppoſed the miſtaken policy of relaxing a moment in a vigorous oppoſition to the ruinous projects of the French Directory, in the hope of perſuading them into peace. "They fear nothing ſo much," ſaid he, "as a general confederacy of Europe, of which England was to be at the head," and then proceeds;

It had been frequently aſked, what was the object of the war, and for what it was, which, until it was obtained, we could not lay down our arms? He ſhould ſay that it was our own ſafety, as it ſtood connected with the general good. It was to be regarded in a general and complicated view, not frittered away into various and partial reſults. The object of a war like the preſent was not a thing which a man may take in his hands, lay on the table, and ſay, "there is an object!"—He ſhould anſwer the queſtion in another way, by referring to the general ſtate of Europe.—He could not be brought to envy the feelings of the man, who could ſee Switzerland bleeding at every pore—and Italy deſpoiled and trampled upon—Holland groaning under the weight of its oppreſſion—and Spain trembling at the nod of a deſpot; and who could ſay, we have nothing to do with their affairs.

This was, in his opinion, to anticipate ſhame, and to run before diſgrace and ſorrow. We could not execute the great taſk of deliverance alone; yet we were told, that becauſe our old allies had diſappointed, therefore our new allies muſt deceive us. The Porte had been repreſented as a drivilling power; and as an ally not fit for Chriſtians—as if men with long beards and furred gowns could not ſee the principles of ſound policy, or acquit themſelves properly in the capacity of ſtateſmen. The Turks had the ſame intereſt in this caſe with the Auſtrians. Both had been equally provoked by the French, and both were deſirous of revenge. Ruſſia had been outraged in like manner; and if there were any thing ſurpriſing in this coalition, it was to be attributed to the monſtrous and devouring ambition of France which had forced theſe powers into an alliance that may otherwiſe appear to be unnatural.

If our former allies were faithleſs at one time, it was, becauſe they were not ſo enlightened then as they are at the preſent moment, with reſpect to the views of France—He would ſuppoſe the Pruſſians and Auſtrian miniſters to meet, (though probably that meeting would not be held at a tavern) to recant their former opinions, and to ſtate what was their conviction with reſpect to France, now that ſhe had thrown off the maſk. If they ſhould ſtate at the bar of the houſe that they once looked on the French Republic as gentle, unambitious, full of frankneſs, and free from guile; that they now regarded it as the reverſe of all theſe, would they not be entitled to forgiveneſs? Would the gentlemen on the oppoſite ſide ſay, that a man who had been once contaminated with French principles, or touched by French connections, could never be conſidered as ſound? No, they would undoubtedly admit of his principles, though they may doubt of its application [This alluſion which was to ſome late deſcriptions of Mr. Fox at the Whig Club, was loudly cheered from the miniſterial ſide of the Houſe] It was to be obſerved, that the feelings of the continental powers, with reſpect to France, aroſe from their immediate experience; we had to form ours only from remote deſcription.—They had to feel what we could ſcarcely conceive.

Segniut irretant animes demiſſa per aures.
Quam quæ ſunt ſculis ſubjectu fidelibus.

He then proceeded to draw a pathetic picture of the ſufferings of the people in Switzerland—the rapes, murders, and conflagrations, which followed on the entrance of the French into their territory, only to aſſiſt them, he ſaid in bringing about a ſlight parliamentary reform! There was no man ſo beſotted as not to believe that the Swiſs would heartily join in the cauſe, if a general confederacy were framed on the continent. But if this motion were to be adopted, we ſhould throw a wet blanket on the fire, which was otherwiſe about to ſpread through Europe. Whenour allies are ſlightingly mentioned, he ſhould like to know from which of their allies the French could expect any thing like a firm adheſion and co-operation. Was it from the Ciſalpine Republic, which they had taken as a living ſubject on which they may practiſe their experiments in political anatomy, and through the palpitating members of which they hunted for the vital principle of republicaniſm? Was it from the Roman or Ligurian Republics, which they had ſo ſhamefully plundered and abuſed?—Was it from the King of Sardinia, who, though a nominal monarch in his palace, yet felt that the French General in the citadel of Turin was "a Viceroy over him?" If the war were once vigorouſly carried into Italy, none of theſe powers would quietly ſit down under ſuch tyranny. It was the ſame with Spain and Holland, whoſe reſources had been palſied by the baneful touch of French Fraternity, and who were now paying to the uſurpers.

STILL BORN INFANTS.

Doctor Herbolt, an eminent Man-midwife and a Surgeon of Diviſion at Copenhagen, has made the following important Diſcovery—That the cauſe of apparent death in ſtill-born Children, is their having the wind-pipe filled with water.

By the ſimple proceſs of laying the Infant in ſuch a poſition as to procure a gradual and total diſcharge of the water, Dr. Herbolt has had the happineſs to reſcue in the proportion of twelve out of thirteen of the Innocents, fortunately ſubmitted to his care.

Some months ſince the French were talking about making Naples the Grand rendezvous of their fleet.——Where, now, is the neceſſity of this Grand rendezvous?

"The Bank of England, the ſole ſupport of government, has juſt broke; the news from the Indies is diſaſtrous; every thing predicts the downfall of its pride and power."—This was the wild expreſſion of Douleet in the Council of 500, on the 16th of March 1797; and he is not the only fool who has predicted the downfall of that government, the generous ſupport of which only has prevented the deſtruction of every other.

BALTIMORE, MARCH 7.

We are concerned to ſtate an unfortunate occurrence which took place yeſterday morning, on the George Town road, about 4 miles this ſide of Mr. Spurrier's tavern—The ſouthern ſtage, through the drowſineſs of the driver, it is ſuppoſed, was upſet, and a Mr. Harriſon of Virginia, and gen. Sumpter, of S. Carolina, repreſentatives in congreſs, were ſo much injured as to be unable to proceed further than Mr. Spurrier's. It was at firſt thought that an arm of the former and a leg of the latter were broken; but fortunately their wounds proved not to be ſo bad.

TO DOCTOR LOGAN,

ENVOY OF THE PEOPLE.

SO, Doctor, you have been in France!
Not (as of old) to learn to dance.
Altho' there's none, in this our day,
Like Talleyrand, can ſhew the way
To cut and ſhuffle, ſhift and wheel,
And run a diplomatic reel:
But you went there (elſe I'm miſtaken)
On the bleſt errand of peace-making.
You ſaw how Adams, firm and ſtaunch,
Would not be ſcar'd to give an inch;
You ſaw how ſister France was blund'ring,
By aſking tribute, threat'ning, plund'ring;
Your country's wak'ned ſpirit, you ſaw it
Shake off her faulchion's duſt and draw it.
With dread the gath'ring ſtorm you view'd—
Th' impatient flame pent in the cloud,
You knew, if once burſt into action,
Down would go France, and down go faction.
To Paris then you ſlyly went
To give kind ſis a friendly hint.
But ſure (as wiſe men did before ye)
You firſt conſulted wife Deborah*,
And told her what a mighty honour
You would ere long confer upon her,
Being juſt about for France to go
The democratic Plenipo:—
Deb ſmil'd conſent, we well may gueſs,
For honor never came amiſs
To female pride, be't falſe or true,
Since Satan firſt Eve's pride up blew,
To be an angel, when ſhe ate
The fatal fruit, for which we ſweat†.

Now on the Atlantic's heaving tide
I ſee the veſſel ſoftly glide.
Smooth ſeas, and fav'ring winds are given,
(The friend of peace is dear to Heaven).
And now the happy coaſts you ſee—
The land of ſweet equality.
No hills deform the level ſcene‡,
'Tis all a vaſt unbounded plain.
No land-mark, line nor fence are ſeen,
They would the rights of man demean—
A common waſte to live upon,
Where ALL have part, and each has none.
There no man's thicker, heavier, bigger,
Taller nor ſhorter, than his neighbour.
The equal law, ſupreme and wiſe,
Decrees that all be of a ſize.
Should perverſe nature dare to ſhoot
A leg or arm, a hand or foot—
Project a noſe or other member,
Or ſtretch a neck ſo long and ſlender,
Beyond the equal legal guage,
They're trim'd, like rambling twigs in hedge.
And ſome, you'd ſee with rumps cloſe ſhaven,
And ſome sans heads to make them even.
O Doctor, how your heart rejoic'd
To ſee the phantom realiz'd,
Of which all dreamers were in chaſe
From Harrington§ to our Vice Pres.!

Now, Doctor, you admiſſion gain
To Liberty's moſt ſacred fane,
Where peuple ſouverain, or mob
Has ſet up a five headed God.
But, Doctor, (an eſſential thing)
You did no votive offering bring!—
"Alas!" you'd ſay, with deep regret,
"We've not the Coffers of the ſtate."
Howe'er, with prayers, to your fond wiſhes
You made the deity propitious.
He ſmil'd, benign thro' every head,
And gave the nod that PEACE WAS MADE.
O! how it joys a virtuous ſpirit,
To think of your tranſcendent merit,
When ev'ry hope of peace was paſt,
And faction 'moſt at its laſt gaſp,
With food and cordial drops, humane,
To bring the fiend to life again!

Back now, triumphant, for our coaſt
You ſail—your country's hope and boaſt.
The all-important joyful news
To Fame was handed by your ſpouſe.
(Not Virgil's Fame—an ugly witch—
Her modern ſhape's like Madame Bache.)
Upon the morning's wings|| it ſped,
And round the country ſoon was ſpread—
Peace, Peace, Peace, the Demo's ſung—
Logan and Peace mov'd every tongue.
Logan and Peace was all the ditty
In every gin-ſhop of the city.
Nor leſs the country felt the theme
Thro' all its roads, and every lane.
In all the tippling booths and taverns,
The rural Jaco's ſung, like ravens—
"Peace, Peace with France, the mighty nation,
"Procur'd by Logan's interceſſion.
"Well he deſerves our love moſt fervent,
"We cannot get a better ſervant,
"He'll without bidding do our work,
"And (better ſtill) ask nothing for't"—
The other "tenants of the ſhade"
(Juſt mov'd from these a ſingle grade)
Join'd in the general joy ('tis ſaid)
The houſe-cock crow'd, and clap'd his wings,
And look'd as conſcious of great things:
The bulls and bullocks ran and bellow'd,
The calves and ſheep were mute and follow'd.
Cows ſhook their heads in joyous peals,
Dogs bark'd, and cats play'd with their tails.
Mean while, the patriots filled the noggin,
And drank a health to DOCTOR LOGAN.

AN AMERICAN.

* This is a natural inference, as the envoy firſt communicated the ſucceſs of his miſſion to his wife Deborah, and ſhe announced it to the public as mentioned in the ſequel of the poem.

† Alluding to the primeval curſe, "In the ſweat of thy face ſhalt thou eat bread."

‡ The author has departed from the natural topography of the country, the better to adapt it to the idea of univerſal equality, which all admirers of the French ſeem to have in their heads.

§ The author of the Oeena.

|| Doctor Logan's letter to his wife was firſt published in the Philadelphia Gazette, but republished in the Aurora, and from that copied into all the other democratic prints.

"Caſtine, Feb. 20.

"Yeſterday arrived at this port, the ſchr. Lark, Capt. Snow, 17 days from Martinique. Capt. S. informs, That a few days previous to his leaving that place, information was received there, that an Engliſh packet had arrived in the Weſt-Indies which brought London papers to the 10th of Jan. which ſtated that Official Accounts had been received of the Death of Buonaparte, and the Total Diſtruction of his Army.—Capt. Snow ſays that he ſaw and read the account in a London paper received by the packet.

Capt. Snow was informed while he lay at Martinique, by an American who had made his eſcape from Guadaloupe, that a large number of American veſſels had been taken by the French pirates and carried into that port; that 7 ſail had been captured in one week; that they were all condemned with little or no ceremony, and the Americans thrown into priſon; that the frigate United States, Commo. BARRY, had run ſo nigh into Guadaloupe, that he was fired at from the batteries on ſhore, and in return had given them a few broadſides; that the ſloop of war Pickering, having a number of veſſels under her convoy had fired a few ſhot into an Engliſh privateer, ſuppoſing her to be an enemy's veſſel, which obliged her to ſheer off. Capt. S. ſoon after ſpoke ſame privateer, who treated him politely, and permitted him to proceed.—Spoke on his paſſage home, the American ſloop of war Ganges with a number of American veſſels under convoy."

TO THE Promoters of Literature.

THE managers of the Beula Seminary, impelled by motives of pure morality, having resolved to dispose of the following property by way of LOTTERY, in order to assist them in erecting a convenient building for the accommodation of one hundred students, and the necessary professors in the different departments of science—do offer for sale three hundred and fifty lots in BEULA, each fifty-eight feet by one hundred and twenty-five, at twenty dollars per ticket, each ticket entitled to a lot to be determined by ballot; ten dollars to be paid on receipt of the ticket, and the remaining ten on the delivery of the deed. The ballot to take place before impartial men, as soon as the whole number of tickets are sold.

The managers, anticipating the difficulty of obtaining cash for the whole, have resolved to receive an equivalent, for some of the lots, in select books; philosophical apparatus, or in produce and materials for building, delivered on the spot.

It may be observed, that the value of prizes in this lottery will be more than double the amount of all the tickets; for 350 lots, would at their average estimation, produce at least 15,750 dollars; whilst, according to the present proposals, the sum obtained for them will be only 7,000 dollars.

Tickets may be had during this winter, of Morgan J. Rhees, president of the board of managers, no. 177, south Second-street, Philadelphia; who will receive proposals and plans for the erection of the building. It is intended to be of brick or stone; its situation on the summit of a gradual rising eminence, commanding an extensive prospect of the surrounding country; an observatory to be on its top.

Land and out lots in the vicinity of the Town may be had on moderate terms by applying as above. Mechanics and laborers, of good morals will meet with encouragement.
